D. V. Highlights

BY MRS. EDITH DEBY

It is a pleasure to have Mr. Ole Grotte, of Trondheim, Norway, here for a visit. For many years Mr. Grotte farmed west of Violet Grove. About five years ago he sold and moved to his native Norway. While in the district he is the guest of his long time friend, Mr. Louis Mattson. Danny Sleno left June 27th for a four month stay in Suffolk, England. Danny is a member of the International Agricultural Exchange Association and will be working on a farm in Suffolk. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bartlett and family, of Burbank, California, visited Mr. Bartlett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Bartlett, for a few days. Jim is a policeman on traffic patrol in California.

Mr. Otto Stordalsvoll leaves July 1st for a six week visit to his native Norway. This will be Mr. Stordalsvoll's first trip back since arriving in Canada twenty-four years ago.

Howard Jevne has sold his sport shop but we are happy to hear that this does not mean that the Jevnes are leaving the district. Mrs. John Poloway is home from hospital and appears to be convalescing very well.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Johnston attended the wedding of Mr. Johnston's nephew in Penticton on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hill cared for the Johnston's house in their absence.

Coming Event Service Offered

A community billboard service will be offered during the summer months through an advertising series scheduled for the Royal Bank branches at Evansburg and Drayton Valley.

Space has been left in the ads to carry announcements and clubs and organizations are invited to make use of the service to advertise coming events.

Platform Discussion At Banff P.C. Meeting

On the weekend of June 19-20 Rusty Zander the Progressive Conservative candidate for the Drayton Valley Constituency joined Mr. Lougheed and other Conservative candidates at the Banff School of Fine Arts for meetings to discuss the party platform. Accompanying Mr. Zander were Jack and Peggy Tyler, Jack is Rusty's assistant campaign chairman.

The reports of the candidates on Saturday showed that they have all been actively campaigning and they feel ready to fight a provincial election whenever it is called. Many candidates reported that they had taken part in political forums at which candidates from all the political parties of that constituency were present. The forums to date have met with a favorable reception by the public.

Saturday evening was an evening of general fellowship as the candidates and their helpers enjoyed a barbecue at the Lougheed summer cottage.

Sunday sessions began with a discussion of the party platform followed by a luncheon with the press.

The Sunday afternoon session discussion was centered around what the individual candidates believe will be the major issues in the election campaign. Some of the issues that the candidates seemed to favor were: The creation of job opportunities for Albertans in this connection a study of the general economy of Alberta and the encouragement of secondary industries. The preservation of individual rights and the need to make the government a government of the people by the people, for the people. Improvement of farm incomes and the preservation of smaller family farms which are being forced out of business by the present Social Credit party. Balance growth of urban centers with more incentives to business to locate in urban centers other than Edmonton or Calgary. Preservation of our natural environment. Reduction of education costs and the use of property tax as a tax to service property only.

American-style blueberries could be a new crop for Britain if British Ministry of Agriculture trials in Somerset and Cardigan-shire prove successful.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

By Kevin Peterson and Don Sellar (Of the Calgary Herald)

The initial reaction of Alberta business and political leaders to Ottawa's new tax package seems to be one of relief that more radical changes aren't in the wind.

But it's premature to say that all will be sweetness and light when Parliament begins debating the proposed tax legislation this fall.

The tax changes will stir controversy, but it could be several weeks before anyone can say how much fire will be directed against Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

Accounts and tax lawyers -- always cautious folk -- are likely to spend much of their summer pouring over the intricacies of the tax document before offering a definitive judgment.

Already, though, there are signs that some aspects of the proposed tax bill are headed for a rough ride.

Specifically, there is concern being expressed by Social Credit and Conservative spokesmen in Alberta that the much-delayed Syncrude oil sands extraction plant won't proceed because the federal tax concessions are inadequate.

Mines and Minerals Minister Russell Patrick fears the Syncrude project is in jeopardy, and Tory oil critic Don Getty is complaining that the Alberta government should have done a better job wringing concessions out of Mr. Benson to ensure an early start on construction.

"The people of Alberta deserve to know why Social Credit has once again failed to successfully make Alberta's needs known to Ottawa," Mr. Getty says.

Provincial Treasurer Anders Aalborg also gives a hint of controversy to come when he says it is regrettable that Ottawa "has not seen fit to leave (oil well) depletion allowances as they are.

Another potential sore point with the Alberta government is the tax bill's imposition of a capital gains tax, although the effect of nation-wide opposition to the original Benson capital gains proposal appears to have resulted in a less-onerous tax.

Albertans won't be happy to learn that Ottawa's decision to vacate the estate tax field could kill the provincial estate tax rebate plan under which eligible estates can receive the province's 75 per cent share of federal death duties.

Instead of federal estate taxes, Mr. Benson is proposing to tax inheritances as capital gains. And he's not announcing a willingness to share that revenue with the provinces so that Alberta could continue rebating death duties to estates.

Premier Harry Strom already has said his government will examine the whole question of rebating capital gains taxes to offset the federal fiscal move, but the cost of such a program will take a lot of study.

Report From Parliament Hill

By Allen Sulatycky, M.P.

The Opportunities for Youth program has come in for a great deal of criticism recently.

Opportunities for Youth is the Government's effort at allowing the youth of the country to devise their own employment projects for the summer.

When the program was announced three months ago it received strong support from all parties in Parliament. It proposed to provide $15 million for youth employment projects in Canada.

The response to this new endeavor was overwhelming. Projects submitted for consideration involved more than $150 million, ten times the funds allocated. As a result, an additional $10 million was made available.

Projects, in order to qualify, simply had to be of value to the community where they were to be carried out. No less than 80% of the cost of the project was required to be wages for students. No capital costs were to be paid out of the Federal funds.

A number of very worthwhile projects in Rocky Mountain riding have been selected to receive grants from Opportunities for Youth. These involve the communities of Bellevue, Hillcrest, Blairmore, Coleman, Banff, Edson, Drayton Valley, Entwistle, and Fox Creek.

A substantial number of students in each of these communities will benefit and will be provided with funds with which to return to school in the fall as a result of these projects. In addition, hundreds of people will benefit more indirectly.

The projects in Rocky Mountain are fairly typical of those approved throughout Canada. At the same time it is true that a number of very bad ones have slipped through. But it is unfortunate that some choose to condemn the whole program because of a few ill-conceived projects.

Insofar as the undesirable endeavors are concerned, the Government has promised to cancel each one as soon as it comes to their attention. So far only a handful of such bad ones have been found.

For this handful those who always seem to think the worst of any situation, threaten the continuation of a program which has appealed to youth and from which many benefit.

Canada Week Promotes National Understanding

From June 27th to July 4th, 1971, Canadians in all provinces are invited to take part in special festivities to honour Canada Week.

Canada Week is a short period of time set aside to honour our country. This does not mean that the rest of the year we should be indifferent. Quite the contrary! If Canada Week were someday Canada Year, indeed if a marked feeling of national pride expressed itself on a year-round basis through efforts towards unity and brotherhood on the part of all Canadians, a special week would not be necessary. Canada Week is intended to rekindle the spirit of patriotism that seems today to have been pushed aside.

Our national holiday, July 1st, is the focal point of the celebrations. We must not forget its significance. On July 1st, 1867, Canada was born out of the union of Quebec and Ontario with New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Within a few years the country stretched from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Created to withstand political domination from the outside and to fully develop its vast potential, this then inevitable union now enjoys one of the highest standards of living in the world.

We have now reached a point in our history where many of us seem to take for granted all that Canada has given us. Some people express their discontent by preaching secession from or disassociation with the central government. They fail to realize that the success of Canada today is due to its ability as a large power to overcome many of the difficulties which inhibit the growth of smaller countries. We enjoy an enviable reputation in foreign affairs. Canada is often called upon to act as arbiter in international disputes, and its peace-keeping forces have done much to pacify some of the world's trouble-spots. The Canadian Passport is more respected than that of any other country.

In short, it is thanks to a federal system of government that this country has progressed and achieved international respect.

Canada Week has a definite purpose. Canadians are asked to take special notice of their homeland, of their liberty, of their cultural and linguistic diversity and the tremendous potential ahead. No doubt, there is much room for improvement and it is hoped that Canada Week will provide the incentive for thought about assuring that we all benefit from its advantages and from its future.

Our customers who attend our meetings, visit, write or phone us, or who ask us to visit them - who read publications but seek clarification, who look for support for decisions already made, want more than a general comment. Our programs must continue to meet your needs on a personal and group basis.

A second group includes those who do not ask or need our help. They bypass extension services, dig up their own information from researchers, publications or whatever, and make their own decisions. Some D. A.'s are concerned about those people bypassing us - but not me. Our time can be better spent helping those people who are not now our customers but who have the potential to reach their personal or family goals on the farm. Re-training is not the complete answer, when more urban workers are unemployed than total number of farmers in Canada. It is this latter group that extension workers must reach and help.

There are many agencies in the agricultural extension field as shown in the following examples:

1. Federal Department of Agriculture - research publications and extension.
2. Information Canada - publications.
3. Department of Extension - school Vocational Agricultural courses. Not always much supported locally, one wonders why. Works with Department of Man- power in retraining and upgrad- ing.

4. Universities, Schools and Colleges of Agriculture provide services, research eg. Feeders Day Report, guest speakers, in- structors, publications training.

5. Provincial Department of Agriculture - which is the only agency with resident extension workers.

6. County Government's - em- ploying the services of the Agri- cultural Fieldmen.

7. There is the Mass Media, Press, radio and television involv- ed in publicity and awareness, unfortunately publicizing the dramatic rather than the practi- cal. Much of this work is done by the non-agrologists.

8. Agribusiness - whose exten- sion services fluctuate with the economy and seldom if ever con- duct programs of community nature or ones which will not hope- fully improve the sales of that organizations product.

9. Somewhat apart, are the farmer owned co-operatives such as the Wheat Pool, U.G.G., U.F.A., which do have as one of their objectives, community and social development

10. Professional consultants - still pretty new here as they have trouble competing against free government services.

11. Producer organizations such as Seed Growers, Breed Asso- ciations, Stock Growers, etc.

12. Local organizations such as Chamber of Commerce, Ex- hibition Boards.

13. Organized farm pressure groups like Unifarm which are concerned with overall farm pol- icy.

This is quite a conglomeration of extension agencies. Perhaps the greatest extension need is to co-ordinate all of their efforts so we all preach the same gospel.

Wild Oats Reported Serious Problem this Year

Reports reaching the weed con- trol branch of the Alberta depart- ment of agriculture from field staff and farmers in many parts of the province indicate that wild oats are a more serious problem than usual this summer.

W. Lobay, head of the weed control branch, says that the heavy rains received in many areas of Alberta during early June combined with possible breaking of dormancy during the dry month of May, could have been respon- sible for the high germination rate of this weed at this late date.

Although it is too late to use selective herbicides on early- seeded crops, Carbyne can still be used on late-seeded crops like early-maturing barley. Used correctly, it will give good con- trol, Mr. Lobay says, when the wild oats are in their most sus- ceptible stage. This is the period from the first appearance of the second leaf to the first appearance of the third leaf, referred to as the two-leaf stage. Wild oats usu- ally reach the two-leaf stage five to nine days after they have emerged. Once they have passed it, their susceptibility to Carbyne declines rapidly.

When wild oats have germinat- ed they grow very fast under warm moist conditions. Hence, farmers should check their late-seeded crops carefully so that they catch the wild oats in the stage when they are most susceptible to chemical treatment.

There is no selective herbicide on the market that will remove wild oats from a crop after they have passed this susceptible growth stage. Mr. Lobay suggests that crops which were not sprayed at the correct time, and which are now so badly infested with wild oats that the farmer is con- sidering plowing them under, might be cut for greenfeed. It is very important when cutting a wild oat infested crop, to cut it before the wild oats head out. Once they have headed out they can ripen in the swath or sheaf and start new infestations when the greenfeed is moved from one place to another and also when it is fed to livestock.

According to Mr. Lobay, pre- venting the reinfestation of fields over a series of years is impera- tive for successful wild oat con- trol. When there is no reinfesta- tion the density of the wild oats will continue to increase.

SUB-MITS

FROM THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

And so another school year has drawn to a close. For the children it ended with the cessation of classes, report cards and rained out picnics. For the teachers it ended with the usual last-minute tests, marking, report cards and year end returns.

Thanks to the cooperation of the weatherman and several dozen parents we finally managed to hold our annual trackmeet. This year it took a different form in that every child had the opportunity to enter every event. Your comments are appreciated on this method.

As usual there will be a few teachers leaving. Mrs. Hicks (grade one) is going to Regina. Miss Tam (grade three) is going home to Hong Kong for awhile. Mrs. Katyal is moving to Stony Plain. Miss Douglas, speaks wistfully of B.C. Mrs. Hammerlindl (grade five) plans to take a year's leave of absence. Mrs. Sware (grade five) is retiring again. And Mr. Elliott, our principal, is also retiring. Our best wishes go with each of you.

We are looking forward to many changes in the fall. If the building and renovation program proceeds according to plan, the present building will be for grades one, two and three classes. The grades four, five and six classes will be in the present Junior High School. Watch this paper for details in August. And we have been promised a seeded school yard during the first part of July.

Happy holidays!

HART CANTELON

Readers wishing to write to Mr. Cantelon are invited to do so. All letters to be forwarded to Hart Cantelon Counselling Services Ltd., 1600 Cambridge Building, Edmonton. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope to ensure a reply.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:

My husband and I have been married for twelve months. It is a second marriage for both of us, and we are very happy. We have six children all told. We each had three from our previous marriage. We had some bad times getting adjusted at first, but we hung on, and we are glad that we did. I expect that there will be difficult periods in the future, but we're not afraid of them anymore. The only problem that we have now is trying to find rules and limits, for a fourteen year old girl. This is my husband's second child, and since my eldest is only ten years of age, I have had no experience coping with the problems as they arise. What do you suggest?

Dear Concerned Wife:

Most certainly through the week, a girl at this age level, ought to be in following the supper and chore hour, to do whatever homework is necessary, and to be off to bed not later than 9:30 p.m. I gather that living where you are, she likely has to take a bus to school, and this means that she will have to be out on the road, around 8:00 a.m. in the morning. These hours provide her with approximately nine to ten hours sleep, which is needed for a girl of her age, if she is going to keep up the responsibilities at home and at school. Now we come to Friday and Saturday nights. In the first place, lone dating is definitely out, so far as I am concerned at her age. If she wishes to go with a group to some event such as the 4-H Club or a social programme gathered about such a Group Meeting, this is OK providing of course, there is adult supervision, to support you in this kind of decision making.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:

My husband and I are renting the house that we live in. When we started out in married life, we lived with my husband's folks for three years, which was a mistake, but anyway I got along quite well with them. We had our problems, but I was contented to stay, because my husband thought that we could save money for a down-payment on a house. In this hope, I put up with a lot of inconvenience. About two years ago, we still did not have enough money for a down-payment, so we rented again. It was not the kind of house that we wanted, but we had to be content with what was available until we could buy our own home. Three months ago, the landlord gave us notice because he wanted this house for his own boy, since his son was going to go into partnership out in his father's farm. Once again, we have been trying to buy a house with the money that we have on hand, but it seems impossible to find anything within our price range. As a result, in desperation, we rented from my sister. I felt that this was not a wise move, but we had to have a roof over our heads and there seemed nothing else available at our price range. This house requires my husband to commute about eight miles to work. Since the day that we have moved in, he started to complain. It seemed to be just every little thing, that bothered him. Every little improvement that I would suggest, he complains that we should never have moved here in the first place. We seem to have endless arguments over my sister, and what do I do about it?

Dear Concerned Home-Maker:

This could be the result of a lot of tensions which your husband feels. He's undoubtedly disappointed at this point, as you are, that you have not been able to reach your goal of buying a home of your own. Speaking as a man, I know what this means, to be able to say that this is 'yours', and whatever work you put into the place, it is for yourself and for your family. He undoubtedly was as high in his hopes of buying a place of your own, as your dreams were. He may never have said this in so many words, but still secretly it was his dream also. Now he has found that dream dashed to the ground, and on top of it all, he finds himself involved in 'family' again which adds insult to injury. Not that your sister is not doing her best to make you comfortable, but all of this is being involved in the family circle, which he hoped he would be free from. I urge you to encourage him to launch out on some new search for financial arrangements, whereby you can build for yourself. There are a number of housing projects available which encourages families like yours to build a home of your own. There are government incentives and special low-term loans that are available to people on the farm. Get in touch with your District Agriculturist and ask him what details he knows, or where you can secure further information. But above all else get your husband and his thinking centred on the goal that he has set before him all along, and I am sure you'll find his attitude changing and your living with him will be much easier.

Graduation At Entwistle

The programme opened with the singing of O'Canada. The Master of Ceremonies was Kevin Strangway who called on the speakers. First, Cliff Jevne gave the welcoming address followed by short addresses from George Mann and Don Gylander. The Valedictorian was Ralph Johnson and Mr. Elvin Knudsen gave the address to the graduates.

THE GAS FOR 1971 CARS

Esso 2000

Introducing Esso 2000, the new type of gasoline most 1971 cars are designed to use, with 80% less lead than regular grades. Some lead has been retained because engine tests show that a small amount prevents possible valve damage by excessive wear of exhaust valve seats. When new cars are equipped with pollution control devices that require a non-leaded gasoline, Imperial will be ready with the right ESSO gasoline.

We have anticipated some questions you might ask about Esso 2000 and have attempted to answer them here.

Q. Why do car manufacturers recommend this type of gasoline for most of their 1971 cars?

A. Most 1971 cars are designed to run on a lower octane fuel of 91-92 octane and Esso 2000 is specially formulated to those new specifications.

Q. What gasoline should be used for a 1971 car when Esso 2000 is not available?

A. Esso 2000 is the preferred fuel but Esso regular gasoline can be used when it isn't available.

Q. Can my pre '71 car operate on Esso 2000?

A. Many pre 1971 model cars will run on Esso 2000. Your Esso dealer will be happy to help you decide whether Esso 2000 is the right product for you.

Q. If my car runs well on Esso regular gasoline, why should I change to Esso 2000?

A. It will increase spark plug and muffler life and reduce particulate emissions.

Q. What is the lead content of Esso 2000?

A. Esso 2000 has 0.6 grams of lead per Canadian gallon (0.5 grams per U.S. gallon) in comparison to 3 grams in present gasolines.

Q. How can automotive emissions be reduced?

A. By the mid-70's, new cars will be equipped with pollution control systems which will essentially eliminate automotive pollution. It is expected that these systems will require lead-free gasoline and Esso 2000 is the first step in this direction. Also, regular tuneups are important to maintain engine efficiency, conserve gasoline and reduce emissions.

Q. Does Esso 2000 contain the Engine Cleaner and other performance additives?

A. Yes—Esso 2000 contains the Engine Cleaner and is formulated with other additives to deliver the same smooth performance as other Esso gasolines.

Q. How much will I pay for Esso 2000?

A. Imperial Oil Limited suggested retail price is the same as Esso regular gasoline. THEREFORE IT WILL COST YOU NO MORE TO USE ESSO 2000.

Ribbons were awarded to all teams, so every child received a ribbon denoting team standing. Pits were supervised and standards measured by the Grade 10 students from the Evansburg High School. A refreshment booth was operated by several of the mothers of the students and helped to make the day very successful and enjoyable for the students.

Parkcourt Couple Feted on Anniversary

The Park Court Hall was filled to capacity on Saturday, June 19, as friends and neighbors from near and far gathered to help Jim and Millie Stewart celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. Both have lived in this district all their lives, Jim and the former Millie Zollikofer were married on June 21, 1946 in the Park Court United Church. There was the only wedding ever to be held in this church.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have four sons, three daughters and one granddaughter. All were present for the happy occasion.

The bride of 25 years looked lovely in a pink dress with matching coat and corsage of pink orchids. She also wore a bandeau of pink orchids and green velvet leaves in her hair.

Mrs. Lilly Feldberg, the bride's sister and bridesmaid was also in attendance.

The good old time music for the evening was supplied by the Ohl orchestra. Jim and Millie, dancing to the music of the Ranger's Waltz led the crowd. At midnight a buffet supper prepared by all the Stewart children and served by the Gay Gatherers was enjoyed by all.

On behalf of the community club and the Gay Gatherers, Mr. Fred Fausak presented them with a pole lamp. The gift from the family was a chesterfield suite. Many other gifts were also received. The guest book was signed by everyone present.

Jim and Millie very graciously thanked their friends, their family, the clubs and the orchestra for a most wonderful evening. The happy couple then cut their wedding cake which had been baked by their daughter-in-law. The three-tiered cake was beautifully decorated in white lattice work and pink roses and topped by white wedding bells and a silver "25".

ENTWISTLE NEWS

Mrs. Marian Nelson and family were in Entwistle on June 11th visiting with Lila Bancroft and Gwen Campbell.

Meg and Jack Swinnerton have gone to Banff with Vera and Les Usher for awhile.

Ann Greave has been somewhat under the weather recently and has been in the hospital for awhile. She is now at home and we hope she will soon be her own normal self again.

The First Entwistle Brownie Pack took a tour of the Entwistle Fire Hall and saw the fire engine and equipment. They also saw the office where the meetings are held and enjoyed it very much.

Mrs. Maddock's room at the Entwistle School also went through the Entwistle Fire Hall and inspected the fire engines. Some were very interested and asked quite a few questions. Mr. Fore-cast took them on the tour.

Silver Foil Foils Public

Some well-meaning citizens have been saving silver foil from cigarette packages for nothing. They have been under the impression that silver foil can be exchanged for dog guides for the blind.

"This is a bad rumour," says Mr. Paul O'Neill, Director of Public Relations, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Toronto. "Silver foil has no value and will not purchase a dog guide."

Mr. O'Neill reports that his department receives seven calls each week from people with foil donations. "This number has decreased in the last two years," he says. "We used to get five calls a day."

School groups, cub packs, and various organizations have sponsored "save the foil" campaigns. One group of students collected one ton of foil in the belief that they were helping the blind.

"Unfortunately," says Mr. O'Neill "we have to tell these groups they are wasting their time. Dog Guide are a CNIB service supported by its own financial campaigns, the United Appeal, and the Community Chest."

"We spent quite a while finding out how this whole thing started," he continues. "Finally we traced it to England, to an aluminum refining company, which has been giving money to charitable organizations in exchange for foil."

Since a large portion of foil is donated by supporters of dog guide training schools, Mr. O'Neill feels that this is probably how the confusion started.

If any person is asked to collect silver foil, he should contact the CNIB. "Check before you collect," suggests Mr. O'Neill. "Avoid disappointment."

Hail Suppression Aim of Hailstop Project Experiments

Project Hailstop 1971 is now underway, and will continue until the middle of August. The project consists of a series of experiments being conducted by the Research Council of Alberta in conjunction with the National Research Council and the Canadian Meteorological Service.

These experiments are aimed at finding an effective and economically feasible method of suppressing hail which causes an estimated $25 million worth of damage to crops in Alberta annually.

For many years research into the causes and behaviour of hailstorms in central Alberta has been carried on using weather radar, cloud photography, mobile meteorological stations and more recently instrumented aircraft. In addition, farmers have played a vital role by providing 43,000 hail reports giving the necessary background data on where, when and how much it hails. The results are now paying off since the knowledge of hailstorms, whilst still far from complete, has reached the point where worthwhile experiments in hail suppression can now be conducted on a firm scientific basis.

Last July a pilot project was carried out using a new seeding technique. The results were encouraging and so the technique is being given a much fuller trial this year. The seeding system consists of a T-33 jet aircraft provided by the National Aeronautical Establishment in Ottawa and specially equipped to drop cloud seeding flares.

The aircraft carries 104 flares in a rack under the fuselage. These flares can be dropped in rapid succession as the aircraft flies over the developing part of the hailstorm. Each flare is fused to fall 7000 feet and then releases trillions of tiny silver iodide freezing nuclei particles into the target zone.

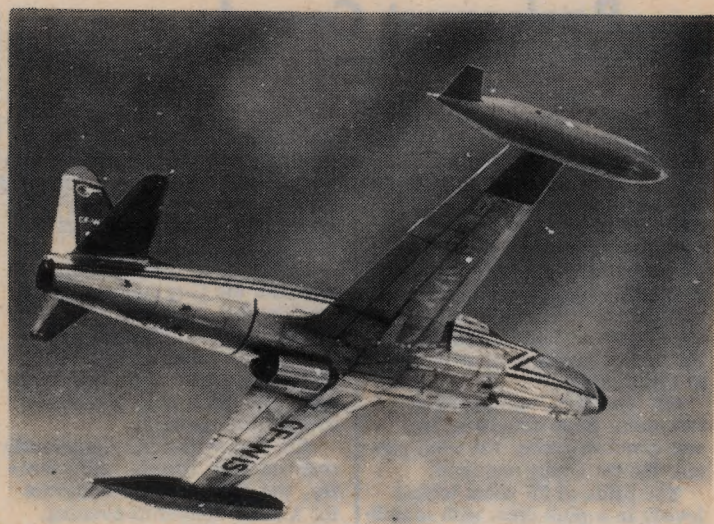

The target zone is the region of the cloud containing supercooled water droplets in a temperature range between 23 and 10 F. This is the region where natural freezing nuclei are in short supply and where the initial hail embryos are thought to form. The seeding is designed to increase the number of hail embryos by a factor of 100 to 1000. Thus with a given water supply in the cloud the hailstones will be much smaller, and they will either be too small to cause any damage, or will melt before reaching the ground and fall as rain.

The experiments will be carried out over a large area between Edmonton and Calgary, within 90 miles range of the project weather radar on the Canadian Forces Base Penhold just south of Red Deer. Storms occurring anywhere in this region will be potential candidates for an experiment. On each day an attempt will be made to seed the most severe storm because in this way if the seeding has any effect it will show up most dramatically.

As soon as a suitable storm has been detected moving out from the foothills by the weather radar, the T-33 will leave CFB Namao and fly to the storm area where it will take up a holding position to the south. Once the sampling trucks are positioned downwind of the storm where they can collect rain and hail, project control at Penhold will give the go ahead for an experiment to begin.

The aircraft will then seed each new surge of activity that occurs in the storm over a period of 30 to 40 minutes. The data collected by radar, cloud photography and hail surveys, as well as chemical analyses of the storm precipitation will be studied in great detail next winter to look for evidence of any changes in the storm behaviour attributable to the seeding.

If hail activity is close to normal this summer then it should be possible to do about 20 to 25 experiments.

Not every severe hailstorm that occurs in central Alberta will be seeded, and no guarantee of protection against hail damage can be given at this stage in the experiments. However the experiments will be done in such a way as to maximize the possibility of establishing a cause and effect relationship between the seeding and any observed changes in the storm behaviour.

In this way another step will be taken towards finding out whether hail can be suppressed in Alberta

The money you spend. The less you pay for service charges, credit charges, interest—the more you have left to spend.

The money you keep. Realistically invested, it will make money for you.

The money you borrow. A Treasury Branch loan is economical. It takes more than money to make money. It takes forethought, solid planning and experienced management.

Unemployment Insurance Changes Follow Long Study

OTTAWA -- Almost thirty years to the day when unemployment insurance first went into effect in Canada, a new plan took over on June 27.

The new plan, resulting from more than two and a half years of study followed by careful examination by Parliament, was shepherded through enactment by Labour Minister Bryce Mackasey.

"What we are now doing", he said, "is a logical step in meeting the technological and social challenges of our times with a plan geared to Canadian needs - and Canadian conditions."

Prior to passage of the new Unemployment Insurance Act, benefits were geared to a more or less rigid formula based on contributions. There was little protection for the worker who found himself unemployed through illness and none at all for the working wife who became pregnant.

"These were real problems, nevertheless," Mr. Mackasey said, "and we've made arrangements within the framework of our new Unemployment Insurance plan to provide effective coverage."

To the present 5.5 million insured workers, a further 1.2 million people will be added in January of next year. This will mean that virtually all salaried employees will be insured against a temporary interruption of earnings.

The new claimant assistance program will assist the unemployed to find new jobs, or guide them to the other agencies that can help solve social or economic problems.

"We've come a long way since 1941," Labour Minister Mackasey says with satisfaction. "Only a comparative handful of people were protected. There was a salary ceiling of $2,000 a year beyond which people were expected to fend for themselves. In those days we couldn't even offer protection to people living in the far north. There were just too many problems."

"Over the course of the years, unemployment insurance was extended to other occupational groups, benefits were raised several times, the last increase being a 10 percent supplement to the existing structure in January of this year."

Under the new legislation, benefit payments will be based on a formula which will allow payment of two thirds the average salary of the claimant in initial stages and rising to three quarters of the established salary under certain conditions for claimants with dependents.

For people making less than fifty dollars weekly, the 75 percent rates comes into effect immediately with the establishment of a claim.

In addition to establishing new rate of benefit, geared to the claimant's need, new rules of eligibility allow payment of benefit to people with as little as eight insured weeks of employment.

People with 20 or more weeks of insured earnings are eligible for a wider range of benefits which include provisions for payment for income interruptions caused by either illness or pregnancy.

At present it is estimated that less than one third of all Canadian employees are covered by wage loss insurance plans that offer benefits equal to, or better than, those available under the new unemployment insurance legislation. The new Act will encourage employers to meet those standards and, if they can do so, the sickness portion of their unemployment insurance premiums will be reduced accordingly.

In some particulars the new plan departs drastically from the previous programme. For the first time, premiums paid by contributors will be tax deductible while benefit payments will be subject to income tax. This will take effect January 2, 1972.

"What you have to keep in mind", Mr. Mackasey points out, "is this. This is an insurance plan. Everybody in it contributes and the money paid out is income in the fullest sense. What is being offered is an insurance programme devoid of any suggestion of welfare or dole. We intend to keep it that way as a well-run service for the man and women who have every right to expect efficient and speedy administration."

Details of the new plan are available in a booklet, "A Guide to the New Unemployment Insurance", available from all Unemployment Insurance offices throughout Canada. A second booklet, "The Right of Canadians" outlines the development of unemployment insurance in Canada throughout the past thirty years.

Boating Takes Increasing Toll

Recreational boating continues to increase each year as more and more Canadians become involved in this activity during their leisure time. To prevent needless loss of life and property, this increasing traffic on our rivers, lakes and sea shores must be accompanied by greater awareness of safe boating practices.

Principal cause of boating accidents can be attributed to carelessness on the part of the operator. Overloading or improper loading of small boats, lack of knowledge for safe operating procedures and improper use of equipment too frequently result in serious accidents.

Boating accidents can be controlled through safety education supported, where necessary, by law enforcement to make pleasure boating what it should be -- a purely pleasant recreation.

Recognizing the need for emphasis on boating safety, the Canada Safety Council is sponsoring a Safe Boating Week across Canada. All boating and yachting associations, provincial governments, the news media and others interested in safe boating are participating in any way they can by promoting boating safety through education, demonstrations and other activities during this national campaign. The observance of Safe Boating Week is a reminder to veteran sailors and novices alike that boating fun and safety go hand-in-hand.

Bruce and Charlotte Winters were out from Fallis visiting the Joe Vowk's last weekend.

Sonia Hutchinson, Michael Vowk, Jeri and Bill Mason travelled up to Grand Centre to see Pete Hutchinson who is working up there for a few weeks. From there they travelled to Meadow Lake, Saskatchewan to visit Josie and Toni King. Josie was well known in Drayton Valley in the past as a hair dresser.

Peter Vowk has left his position with Brisebois Bros. Construction to go into a partnership with Albert Bailey in managing Centre Texaco Garage in Edson. Pete and Elaine are both delighted with this new venture. Good Luck you two.

Ted and Amy Oscar are back from holidays. They travelled to Vancouver Island where they took in Butch and Mary's wedding. From there they crossed the water to Vancouver where they spent a few days with Amy's mother. Then up to Quesnel to Eunice and Russel Stewart. They didn't disown our own province completely, they spent the last few days in Edmonton with Amy's sister.

Someone broke into the Easyford Hall and messed things up and took a fire extinguisher. Nothing else was touched.

SUMMARY

With fine weather conditions prevailing receipts were sharply higher early in the week and then decreasing under unsettled conditions as the week closed. Cattle and calf receipts continue to be approximately 75% replacement classes. Trade was only moderately active throughout the week on slaughter cattle as buyers anticipated a lower price trend on most classes. Slaughter steers and heifers generally 50 lower on top quality and up to 1.00 lower on in-between grades. Butcher cows 1.00 to 1.50 lower. Bulls 50 - 1.00 lower. Veal steady. Heavier two-way replacements 50 - 1.00 lower. Lambs steady.

SLAUGHTER CATTLE AND CALVES

Slaughter steers opened the week under slight pressure with only the odd sale over 32.50 and sold slow under close sorting to 50 lower as the week closed. Lightweights under 950# were receiving the usual discounts of 50¢ per cwt. Butcher heifers on offer were mostly lighter weights in the medium to good quality class. Heavier choice weights over 800# sold generally steady most of the week with the odd sale over 28.50 but all grades were off a full 50 cents as the week closed. Butcher cows opened about steady with the odd sale to 23.00 for good dry feds, but good and medium kinds were 1.00 - 1.50 lower by mid-week and lower grades 1.00 lower. Bulls 50 - 1.00 lower at a practical top of 25.00 as the week closed.

REPLACEMENT CATTLE AND CALVES

Prices on lighter weight replacements and stock calves held steady under a good demand. Good stock calves under 300# continue to sell over quotations. Heavier two-way feeders were generally 50 - 1.00 lower in closing trade.

BUCK CREEK NEWS

The Buck Creek School children were taken on a trip to Edmonton to the Archives Museum last week, by their teachers, Mrs. Sieben and Mrs. Hauser. The children found it a very interesting place to visit. They were transported to Edmonton in Danny Sieben's bus.

Mrs. Inga Hawryluk attended a China painting seminar in Crossfield last week.

Mrs. Norma Malin is home following a very enjoyable and interesting trip. Norma left Nisku airport for Toronto on the evening of June 4th. She then went on to Washington D.C. where she visited the White House and Capital Building, attended memorial services for Robert Kennedy, and saw the Kennedy family. She also visited Arlington Cemetery and the F.B.I. Building. She then went to Mount Vernon, Virginia, the home of George Washington and then took a boat back to Washington. Following her Washington visit she toured New York by bus, boat and helicopter. She also viewed the city from the top of the Empire State Building and toured the Queen Elizabeth which happened to be docked there at that time. She then flew to Toronto and took a taxi to Oshawa, Ontario where she picked up a new car. Before leaving for home she went to Niagara Falls which she says is very beautiful. Enroute home she drove through Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and South Dakota. She stopped at Mount Rushmore to view the stone faces of the Presidents carved in the rock. She also went through the Crystalized Caves and the Petrified Forest. When she got back to Alberta she stopped at Strathmore and visited with the McGaffins. The McGaffins are former Buck Creek School teachers. Norma was gone two weeks and seems to have enjoyed every minute of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lind, Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Regenwetter and Mr. and Mrs. Ordin Kissar attended the bus drivers banquet held in Calmar on June 10th.

Sunday evening visitors at the Helmut Luethi home were Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch and Mr. and Mrs. Elliot of Didsbury.

Get well wishes go out to Walter Stec and Clarence Nelson who are patients in the Drayton Valley Hospital.

The Buck Creek Beavers lost their last three games, two against Drayton and one against Breton. The games were very close with the boys losing by one run in each game.

The Ladies soft ball team won their game against the Lindale Ladies and lost to the Alder Flats Ladies.

Monday evening the Sunday School held their annual attendance awards night. The Sunday School would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Dave Johnston for the donation toward the Sunday School.

Miss Myrtle Nelson will begin work for the summer on Monday, June 8th at the University Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nielson of Morrin, and Mr. Eldon Nielson of Drayton Valley spent Father's Day with their father, Mr. Harry Nielson. That evening Bob phoned his father from Hanna.

Mr. Buster MacDonald, who has been working on water bombers at the Drydon, Ontario airfield will be returning home on June 28th. Buster and Norma and Buster's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dunlop of Edmonton are planning a trip to Banaby, B. C. for their niece's wedding on July 3rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Safronovich and family spent the weekend at Jasper.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Raymond of Rimbey spent Father's Day at the Foster Simpson home.

The Fish Derby at Buck Lake last weekend was very successful, with close to seven hundred fishermen entering the competition.

World-Wide Pollen Shortage

When there are no blooms like this one for honey bees to feed on, they often starve for pollen. The world's first synthetic aroma capable of attracting honey bees to a pollen-replacing diet has been developed by three Canadian scientists. Their work could pave the way toward the development of a successful pollen-like food for bees, offsetting a growing world-wide pollen shortage.

Fifty per cent of Alberta's total cattle population will be in warble control areas on July 1, 1971. J. L. Kerns, livestock specialist in charge of the warble control program, reports that 30 municipal areas with a combined cattle population of 1,660,000 will be in warble control areas on July 1. Twenty-eight of these municipal areas have already passed legislation and the other two will be doing so shortly. Fifteen additional municipal areas have indicated an interest in petitioning this year, and Mr. Kerns anticipates that by this fall 60 to 70 per cent of the province's cattle population will be in warble control areas. The map shows the warble control areas in Alberta as of July 1.

Conduct Survey of Spotted Fever Ticks

The Alberta department of agriculture recently co-operated with the provincial department of health and federal research stations in carrying out a survey to determine the presence and location of Rocky Mountain spotted fever ticks in Alberta. The last survey was conducted about 25 years ago.

The present survey was initiated by the provincial department of health which is anxious to obtain up-to-date information on tick-borne diseases and to ensure that they have vaccines available in those areas where the ticks could be a hazard to human beings.

Ticks collected under the survey have been sent to the Zoonoses Laboratory, Canadian Communicable Disease Centre, Ottawa, to find out if they are carrying such human diseases as Rocky Mountain spotted fever, Colorado tick fever or tularaemia. The ticks can also carry tularaemia and tick anaemia to horses, cattle and sheep, and cause paralysis in these animals as well as in human beings.

The plant industry division, federal research stations, and the provincial health units collected them from vegetation. L. K. Peterson, entomologist, reports that the plant industry division received nearly 150 ticks from six locations in the south of the province. Areas being sampled under the survey extended from the American border in the south, north along the foothills of the Rocky Mountains to the new town of Grande Cache.

In Alberta, adult ticks have been found from April to August with the peak being reached in May. After having reached their peak of activity, they tend to drop to the ground and go into a sort of hibernation until the following spring. In nature the adult ticks feed on such wild animals as coyotes, rabbits, antelopes, deer and mountain goats and on such domestic animals as horses, cattle and sheep. The immature ticks feed mainly on rodents.

Contrary to popular opinion, spotted fever ticks do not infest trees, logs or green lumber. Their presence there is usually purely accidental. They prefer low shrubbery where they lay in wait for a potential "host" to come by and then attach themselves to it. When ticks from a forested area are found on the back of the neck, or the upper part of a person's body, they have not dropped from trees, but have clung to the individual's leg as he walks through the shrubbery and then crawled up his body.

Studies Evaluate Plastic Roughage

How satisfactory are plastic roughage pellets for replacing natural roughage in cattle finishing rations? Do they provide faster gains? Is the cost per pound of gain cheaper than without them?

Alf Erichsen, livestock specialist with the Alberta department of agriculture, checked the results of a number of studies which have been carried out in the United States to determine just how useful these tasteless, non-nutritive plastic pellets are for fattening feedlot animals.

The manufacturers claim that the pellets, which are approximately half an inch long, are readily eaten by cattle. They also claim that the corrugated sides and sharp edges of the pellets scratch the wall of the rumen and produce the agitating effect as that caused by natural roughage. They say that the pellets have to be fed only for about the first six days (1/2 lb. per head per day) of the feeding period. The pellets' very light specific gravity enables them to float in the rumen fluid without passing into the second stomach. Once in the rumen, they stay there as long as the animals stay on an all concentrate, no roughage ration, the manufacturers say. However, a single feeding of hay, silage or other natural roughage will "flush" them out of the rumen and out of the animal. This means that no hay or straw can be used to bedding when plastic roughage is being fed.

Advantages of the plastic roughage, says the manufacturer, include a significant reduction in the total feed handled because all natural roughage is eliminated; a reduction in the cost of the ration because roughage processing and storing is no longer necessary; elimination of the cost of bedding; and a significant reduction in the amount of manure that has to be removed.

Mr. Erichsen reports that his investigations have led him to the conclusion that a feeder can get similar results by simply removing roughage from his finishing ration. An all concentrate ration, with or without plastic roughage, increases the caloric density; and, hence, the rate of gain and feed conversion are bound to improve. However, care should be taken, says Alf Erichsen, when feeding an all concentrate ration, especially when the cattle are started on the feed, and when it is fed to small or young animals.

To back up his conclusion on plastic roughage, Mr. Erichsen cites the following study carried out by Drs. J. S. Meiske and R. D. Goodrich of the University of Minnesota. In this experiment two pens of 16 steers each were fed all concentrate rations of whole shelled corn for 147 days. One group also received the plastic roughage.

The average daily gain for the no roughage control group was 3.19 pounds a day compared with 2.96 pounds per day for those fed the plastic roughage. Feed required per pound of gain was 6.05 pounds for the controls and 6.33 for those fed plastic roughage. Costs per 100 pounds of gain were 13.52¢ for the controls and 14.48¢ for the others.

Dr. Meiske also reported that it was difficult to get the steers to eat the plastic roughage as they kept separating it out from the grain. He said it took from 10 to 12 days to get them to eat it. No regurgitation of plastic was noted, nor was any of it passed in the feces. However, none was found in the rumens when the cattle were slaughtered.

Dr. Herb Rebhan of Doboy Feeds, New Richmond, Wisconsin, ran a 148-day trial using the plastic roughage with whole shelled corn. Results, with the plastic roughage fed group listed first and the controls second, were as follows; average daily gain 2.62 and 2.70 lbs. feed per pound of gain 6.99 and 6.84; cost per 100 lbs of gain 16.63¢ and 16.26¢.

On the basis of these and other feeding trials, Mr. Erichsen feels that plastic roughages cannot be economically added to feedlot rations. He also feels that the possible savings which may accrue in terms of reduced manure disposal will be more than offset by the increased maintenance requirements of animals being fed without bedding under Alberta's weather conditions.

Research projects on plastic roughage are now being conducted at the University of Alberta and the University of Saskatchewan.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ELECTORS PETITIONING FOR A VOTE ON A MONEY BY-LAW IN A COUNTY

(Sections 2(e), 3 and 104, The School Act, 1970)

- 19 years of age or older
- who is a Canadian citizen or British subject, and
- resident in a County for at least the 12 months immediately preceding the day on which the petition is presented;

A poll respecting the aforementioned borrowing may be demanded in a County by preparing and submitting to the School Committee a petition for a vote in accordance with the provisions of Sections 2(e), 3 and 104 of The School Act, 1970.

The petition must be signed by at least

- 2 per cent of the electors in a County having 10,000 electors or more, or
- 5 per cent of the electors in a County having less than 10,000 but 5,000 electors or more, or
- 10 per cent of the electors in a County having less than 5,000 electors but 500 electors or more, or
- 15 per cent of the electors in a County having less than 500 electors, and be filed with the School Committee within 15 days of the last publication in a newspaper of the public notice of the proposed debenture borrowing.

Check Rape Crop Carefully

It is very important that rapeseed growers check their crops regularly and carefully for insects says Sherman Yelland, cereal and oil seed crops specialist with the Alberta department of agriculture.

He advises continuing this regular checking until the crop is swathed, and explains that insect populations can build up to epidemic proportions in a very short time. Any fairly large number of insects in a crop should be reported to your local district agriculturist who will identify them or send them to your crop clinic for identification. Control measures will then be recommended.

Mr. Yelland also suggests that any farmer who notices signs of disease in his rapeseed crop should report that as well. Disease took quite a toll in rape crops last year, and could be a problem again this year.

New Ready for Use Ruelene

A new ready-to-use formulation of Ruelene insecticide will be on the market in time for cattlemen to treat their cattle for warble grubs and lice early in the fall. Called Ruelene R2R, this new formulation gives cattlemen the convenience of a pour-on systemic insecticide which can be used straight from the can with no mixing. It will be available in 128 ounce containers. Cattlemen who prefer a concentrate which can be used either as a spray or as a pour-on application will still be able to get the original formulation R25E.

It is our individual performances, no matter how humble our place in life may be, that will in the long run determine how well ordered the world may become.
